WWW.MUSICCONFERENCE.NET

Summer's here once again and so are all those music conferences that have been hyping themselves all year. There's a few that we like to get involved with and I'll give you a bit of head's up on them.

This is the third year for the IMC and it's growing nicely. We started to see registrations coming in even before the new year ticked over, which in my experience, just doesn't normally happen. We also have some great new workshops planned for this year like the Image class that John Battaglia will be teaching, John has worked with Beyonce and a bunch of other superstars, now he's focusing on independent musicians. We're glad to have him on board. Bill Pere's popular workshop which is based on the Myers Briggs personality profile system will be back, and he's updated it for 2005. The incredibly popular DISCourse listening session will also be back and we'll have some cool people critiquing the CDs like Jesse Blaze, who is Dee Snider's (Twisted Sister) son.

Philadelphia is a beautiful city with a TON of great reasons to have a music conference there. The Sheraton where it's held is right in the thick of the club district, and the cool tourist spots. The music scene is truly vibrant and we're pleased to be bringing so many talented indie performers to Philly once again.

Here are some quick examples of just a few of the killer workshops lined up for this year...

Gregory E. Seneff, Sr., Esq. Attorney and Producer of MusicLawBiz will present his workshop: "The Art of the Deal - Management, Agency, Publishing, Production, and Recording." The only thing worse than no deal is a bad deal. An artist or writer may miss opportunities because they make decisions based on the compliments of "producers," "publishers," "record labels," "managers," "promoters," "A&R Reps," or "agents," and mistakenly assume those individuals will do the "right thing" for the artist. This seminar discusses issues ALL artists and writers should understand.

Panel: “Studio to the Street”
A moderated panel presentation of the steps that typically occur from the time the artist is signed with a record label, through the recording process, to a tour, and a discussion of how independent artists can learn and benefit from the “label” model.

John S. Battaglia, Jr. will share the 7 simple steps that every artist must know in order to create an effective image. The interactive, 2-hour workshop will cover building natural star qualities; creating your own distinct style and look; image from an authentic place and the three biggest image mistakes that most emerging artists make.

Neil Sheehan - Founder Hardcore Marketing, Inc. who was very popular in the DISCourse critique session will once again teach us about management, booking, marketing, branding, and street teaming.

Doug Waterman of the American Songwriter Magazine in Nashville, Rosemary Ostrowski Singer and Voice Therapist of Philadelphia, Michael Driscoll of Indian Rock Records, Docta Shock - Owner/Operator/Producer of UrbanBeatMovement.com, and so many more will be joining us for IMC05! Don't miss it! Purchase your registration right now, before the price goes up: www.IMC05.com.

Now I'd like to tell you about another series of events that we always enjoy attending...

LOS ANGELES (October 25, 2005)
The DIY Convention: Do It Yourself in Film, Music & Books has issued the annual call for entries to its festival series honoring independent film, music and photography.

The festival performances, screenings and exhibit will be held as part of the 2005 DIY Convention in Hollywood, scheduled from Feb. 7-12, 2005. The convention features five nights of national independent music acts, two days of film screenings, an exhibition hall and two days of panels and workshops.

Entry forms and complete rules for the festivals are available online at www.diyconvention.com or may be obtained by calling their offices at 323-665-8080. Winners of the DIY Music, Film and Photo Festivals will awarded a combination of cash and prizes at ceremonies held in conjunction with the February convention.

All festival entries must be received by Jan. 25, 2005 to be eligible for the competition.

The DIY Convention teaches musicians, filmmakers, authors, photographers and entrepreneurs how to create, promote, protect and distribute independent film, music and books.

2005 BALTIMORE MUSIC CONFERENCE

Brand new this year, the first BMC will take place September 24 - 25, 2005 in Patterson Park, Baltimore MD. Saturday hours: 10am - 9pm and Sunday: 10am - 6pm. It's open to all ages and there's no charge for admission, but there's a fee for the seminars, workshops and classes.

Their website states - Our Mission: To highlight and promote the talent of Baltimore musicians and DJ's. To provide education for those looking to fine tune their skills, those looking to obtain the knowledge to promote themselves and prosper as a musician or DJ, and those looking to become affiliated with record companies. To educate the general public to the presence of this talent. To educate the population outside of Baltimore to the true charm of Charm City.

Event Highlights:

- BELIEVE and the BMC will host stages featuring the talents of local musicians and bands playing predominantly original material and DJs spinning the hottest music out in all genres of electronic dance music. All bringing the finest music Baltimore has to offer.
- Undercurrents Stage... the 1st Baltimore region showcase for songwriters, musicians, lyricists, and bands.
- Additional stages throughout the park hosted by local nightclubs, venues, and promoters dedicated to promoting local talent.
- Vendors promoting their music and clubs, selling merchandise, food, and beverages will be situated throughout the park. Alcoholic beverages will be served only with proper ID.
- B'more Artfull will provide the attendee with a sampling of some of our many fine artists here in Baltimore as we present a juried art show.
- Child's Play... a supervised area for children to entertain themselves with arts & crafts, Karaoke, and a petting zoo.
- The Game Room... casino style gambling with proceeds going to the BMC for future endeavors. Along with the latest in electronic games in the industry.
- Play & Learn... a major aspect of the conference will be the seminars and workshops led by some of the most respected and well known in the music industry. We strongly believe through education comes better music, better performers, and better businessmen and women.

- Neighborhood Row... Neighborhood and Community Organizations join together to support Baltimore, her music, and her talent.
- BELIEVE supported... thru the Mayor's Office of Neighborhoods.

Sounds like a great outdoor festival style environment and a good kick off to Baltimore's first music conference. Check it out at www.bmcon.org.

A Fine Time: Singer/Songwriter Stephani Fine

by Frederick Kristian

DALLAS, TEXAS 2005

To say simply that singer/songwriter/ musician Stephani Fine is talented would be an understatement. For, if I said Stephani was talented, I know that wouldn't be enough to motivate others to see her live or buy her CD, Fine Lines. So, I will go a step beyond and tell it like it really is. Stephani Fine is a powerhouse. She exudes a sly confidence while maintaining a coy disposition. Her dreamy looks and sex appeal is captivating and mysterious. During one of her stellar performances, I sat and watched how she interacted with an eager audience. Only saying a few words, she controlled every aspect of the performance. When she sang, the room stopped moving and cued in on the beauty that resonated from the stage. As I listened to the clarity and strength in her voice, I knew that this was something special. During this performance, I can truly say that Stephani was one of the standout performers. Her set was about 20 minutes, but her performance left a lasting impression. I had met Stephani on other occasions, but had never seen her perform so I didn't know what to expect. Her nonchalant persona told me little about the talent that was beneath the surface.

Meeting her, you would never think that she was the Mega-Diva I witnessed on stage. On many occasions, I heard about her vocal prowess through mutual acquaintances, but it wasn't until I saw her live that I knew how right they were. Forget about what the major's offer, Dallas has birthed its own Indie Icon. With a folkish, southern rock vibe, her music makes you reminisce about the times of old and appreciate all that is new.

Her band is comprised of several outstanding musicians and they serve as the perfect canvas for this masterpiece. I have now had pleasure of seeing Stephani perform on numerous occasions, and not once have I been disappointed. Each time I listen to her CD, I fall in love with her voice all over again. Stephani Fine was born to sing.

Soultree - Souled in a Plain Brown Wrapper
Album Review By Frederick Kristian

Soul stirring...

When I first heard Soultree's Souled in a Plain Brown Wrapper I was immediately taken to a place... I wasn't quite sure where it was, but in my heart it was a beautiful place. I just could not put my finger on it. Then, while sitting in a car listening to CDs on a warm June night, it hit me. Somehow, Sarah McLachlan wound up in the CD player and there I was in that place again. I realized very few artists have this effect on me. Sarah is one, Prince being another and now Soultree. Souled in a Plain Brown Wrapper gave my soul a stir, like the beauty of watching fireflies dance through the air in the wee hours before dawn.

The sleek vocal style of Susan Crandall is a welcomed change to an industry that is chock full of carbon copies. While maintaining a sensual contralto vocal range, she dazzles the eardrums with truth and reality. Lyrically this album hits you with a dose of in-your-face realism. With songs like "Pissed Off," "Famous," "Afraid" and "Sexy Thang," Soultree takes you on a musical joyride. This album is mature, classy, edgy and a little cocky. The band does an excellent job of fusing rock, folk and funk. Track 3 - "Wanna Be" is my absolute favorite. It is one of those songs that gives you chills when you hear the intro. Haunting and sexy, it tells the story of a lover who has made up her mind made up that she can't accept being second.

Musically the album soars. The band as a whole is tight and each musician has put in serious work. There were instances where I would have liked to hear Susan take more risks vocally but I have a sneaky suspicion there is more to this Diva than meets the ear. I'm sure we can expect even more of a powerhouse on future albums.

Throughout the CD there are great songs that reach out and grab you. Was my soul stirred? Yes it was. This is positively a must have CD.

OK, I'LL TELL YOU WHERE THE REAL MUSIC IS...

When you first start out as a musician, nothing else matters except the music, and your writing is all about the songs. You ask yourself, "Does it convey what I am feeling?" and "Will others connect with it?" After performing for a few years, the focus begins to change. The questions become, "Does it have a good hook?" and "Is it radio friendly?" From this, we get "super pop songs" and groups who are making millions lip-synching to other people's music. Why? Because the record industry is in "safe mode" and they are afraid of taking chances. They look for the magic formula of a hit song and, if you stray ever so slightly from the formula, you are passed over. If you don't look like Britney, and sing like Christina then you hover in the wings wondering why there is so much bad music on the radio.

Don't be coerced into listening to bad music!

If there is so much great music out there, where are the REAL musicians? They are NOT on the radio, well... not yet. They are in your local bars and coffee shops playing the music that they WANT to play to people who WANT to listen. They are the local singer-songwriters. They may not have a huge following, but their music is top notch. These are the songs that the "Britneys" and "Christinas" buy so they can stay on top of the money charts. Why don't you see them in the "Big Clubs?" You don't see them because they aren't 17 and don't have huge numbers of frat buddies to fill the pockets of the venues. They are the seasoned musicians; they are all about the craft of making good music.

Some of the smaller music venues provide music for their customers' enjoyment. (This translates to FREE) They don't provide music so that the musicians can do all their promotional work for them, and they can sit back and rake in the $15 cover and the $5 a beer while paying the musicians peanuts. You can beat on pots and pans all night long, and if you bring in 100 friends to hear you, then you get a second booking.

SUGGESTION: Support those who support good music!
